Related Shares of GE fell by as much as 10% in premarket trading on Thursday after the company announced that it has agreed to purchase health and life sciences company Covidien for about $50 billion. The deal will include GE acquiring Covidien's automotive unit for $4.4 billion. In a statement, GE said: "[GE] is acquiring Covidien from Blackstone and Caraco for a price of approximately $50 billion. Covidien is a global healthcare company that makes products used in hospitals and physician offices around the world. Covidien's Advanced Imaging unit will become part of GE Healthcare to create a global leader in diagnostic imaging. GE Healthcare is a leader in the healthcare industry with revenues exceeding $40 billion and presence in over 100 countries. GE's expertise in diagnostics, medical technology, clinical services and therapeutics will complement Covidien's diagnostics and therapeutic technologies and expertise. The combination will create the largest diagnostic imaging company in the world and be a leader in cardiology and radiology. The combination will create a combined asset base of more than $5 billion and double GE's revenues to $140 billion. Combining GE and Covidien will create an industry leader for diagnostic imaging, cardiology and radiology globally. This will be a transformational opportunity, creating a billion dollar impact to the U.S. economy and creating thousands of new jobs globally. In addition, Covidien will receive a termination fee based on the current GE stock price of $67.50, or $50 billion. The transaction is subject to customary closing conditions and regulatory approvals, and is expected to close in the first half of 2020. The acquisition is expected to be immediately accretive to earnings, and will accelerate growth in GE's diagnostics and therapeutic businesses."Taste, or chemical sensation, arises through the stimulation of taste buds, located on the tongue. In humans, there are approximately 25,000 taste buds that are present in four taste papillae (Filipenko and Filipenko (1995), in Chemical Senses 20: 55). Each taste bud consists of 50-100 cells and a core of about 500 taste buds. The cells are organized into three distinct layers: an outer layer of flat, horizontally oriented cells (the basal cells), a middle layer of round, elongated cells (the taste cells), and an inner layer of long, vertically oriented taste cells (the apical cells).

, the absence of a requirement for such prior authorization in the contract of insurance demonstrates that the legislature did not intend that a provision such as the one in question should be construed as invalidating an insurance contract. Ill. The trial court held that the entire provision was invalid as being contrary to public policy. In his opinion filed below, trial judge, Judge Thomas, states: "The Illinois Motor Vehicle Safety Responsibility Law permits a party injured by a motorist without a valid and effective policy of insurance in effect at the time of the accident to choose to pursue one of several remedies available to him. Article 9-1(d)(1) of the Motor Vehicle Safety Responsibility Law provides a party injured by a motorist with two potential remedies, a private action against the motorist, or a suit against the motorist's insurance carrier for the amount of damages incurred in a third party action. If the injured party first pursues his remedy against the motorist, *479 and that proceeding is unsuccessful, he can then pursue his remedy against the motorist's insurance carrier. When a third party action against the motorist is successful, the injured party is entitled to recover the damages incurred in the third party action, less any amount which the injured party has received from the motorist. The Illinois law is clearly designed to promote an injured party's ability to recover damages from a third party and to collect damages not received from the motorist. In this case, the insurance carrier in question has paid the amount of the judgment in the third party action. To the extent that the potential insured was able to recover his damages from the insurer, he has lost that opportunity. In addition, in the event of this kind of situation, where a third party action is successful and the insured refuses to comply with the requirement of the Motor Vehicle Safety Responsibility Law that he post security for the judgment, the insurer would be completely discharged from the insured's liability for any amount to which he may be entitled. Ill. Rev. Stat., Ch. 73, Sec. 733.1(d)(1) and (d)(2). The insurance carrier's policy included this provision: "With respect to any occurrence, accident or loss to which this and any other automobile insurance policy issued to me by you apply and which arises out of the ownership, maintenance or use of any automobile, if this policy shall be applicable to such occurrence, accident or loss, the company shall be liable for the applicable limit of liability either to each person or organization for
